Donahue with all his Senses about Him Declares that the "counter Affidavit" in the Interest of D. W. Munn was Extorted from Him by Threats.

Bend His Statement of the Matter.

The sworn statement of Mathew Donahue, given below, so nearly explains itself, that it requires but a few words of introduction.

Mr. Donahue was taken before Col Rearden, notary, public, this morning. H was duly sober. He was assured that no legal nor moral responsibility attached to him if he refused to be sworn to the statement; and before the Colonel would administer the oath to him, he required the assurance from Donahue's own lips, that the statement was true in every particular 2and that he made it freely, without any compulsion or persuasion whatever. This assurance was given, and the oath was then administered.

A rousing meeting was held in Edinburg, a few weeks ago, of which Mr. William Seld was chairman, who, after thanking the meeting for the honor conferred, depicted in graphic and glowing terms the possibility , practicability and feasibility of the Toledo ond Vincennes Railroad, which must ultimately eventuate in the entire change of the great railroad travel and its connections, thereby rendering Toledo & Cairo the greatest railroad centers on the face of the globe, and making the Blue River Valley the most famous in America. The proposed railroad will run through the following coun ties in Indiana; Knox, Greene, Monroe Brown, Johnson, Shelby, Henry and Randolph, and in Ohio as follows: Mercer,
